

Associate Editor for Human Relations

With significant growth over the last few years, Human Relations is recruiting a new Associate Editor to join its current Editorial Team.

The initial appointment is for two years, provides an honorarium, and offers the opportunity to participate in various journal events.

Ideal candidates will have made significant scholarly contributions in management studies or a related field, have significant methodological expertise (especially in qualitative methods), have had considerable experience as a reviewer and ideally editorial experience. They should also have a curiosity for and capacity to handle manuscripts across a wide range of management and organizational topics.

The Editorial Team is responsible for editorial policy and practice. It sets the intellectual agenda, commissions special issues, and represents the journal at major academic conferences. In addition, it oversees the submission, review, and acceptance of articles. Each Associate Editor oversees the review process of approximately fifty manuscripts per year in a range of areas, from submission through selection of reviewers, revision, and final decision.

We consider candidates with any expertise related to management and organizational studies, with a particular preference for organisational studies, business and society (e.g., ethics, sustainability), qualitative approaches to knowledge, organizational communication or critical management studies.

If you wish to apply for this post, please email a copy of your full CV and a very brief statement of intent (no more than a page) to Megan Davies (M.Davies@TavInstitute.org) highlighting your publishing, reviewing, and editorial experience as outlined above. We would like to appoint as soon as possible.

Mark Learmonth and Smriti Anand (the current Co-Editors-in-Chief) will conduct brief interviews with short-listed candidates via Zoom at a mutually convenient time.

You may contact Co-Editors-in-Chief for an informal discussion prior to applying for this role:
